Thanks, Mark. I know it's a tough story to tell on TV and I appreciate you working on tours/interviews/etc.

Any advance look we could get at the fact sheet would be very useful. We can commit to not running it until the press conference.

Please keep me posted on more interview/tour opportunities down the road, as well.

John

John: I know. I feel badly about shortchanging TV, but we unfortunately just don't have anyone in Portland tomorrow for on-camera work.....there are a million reasons, but it's a hard reality of what's going on here, there and in the rest of the region.

On the brighter side, there will be many more "bites at this apple." I'm hoping to have Cami down in PDX for interviews as our Public Meeting schedule spools up and I'm pushing hard to schedule a narrated boat tour around the Public Meetings to spur interest and attendance.

Overall, it's a REALLY hard TV story until we have some in-water actions or someone who can point to something on site.

I will see what I can do to get you our Community Fact Sheet around lunchtime if you can commit to not run it till after the press conference.

Thanks!

Mark

Hi Mark,

John at KGW here. Given the relatively late timing of this release and our deadlines, can we get an early copy of the report under an embargo?

Also, are any of the EPA folks on the call actually here in Portland? If so, can we join them in person to get interviews on camera? These conference calls are fine for the newspaper folks, but they don't work well for broadcasters. Clearly it's a very important story to Portlanders and we want to make sure we can tell it as well as possible.

Thanks,

John

Please Join us for a teleconference media availability to discuss EPA's Proposed Plan for cleaning up Portland Harbor. The call will begin at 1:45pm(PDT) and finish at approximately 2:30 pm (PDT)

Participating in Wednesday's call will be Dennis McLerran, EPA Regional Administrator; James Woolford, Director of EPA's Office of Superfund Remediation and Technology Innovation and Cami Grandinetti, EPA's Regional Superfund Remedial Cleanup Program Manager. A "Question & Answer" session will follow brief opening statements by Mr. McLerran & Mr. Woolford.

You will receive a press release & fact sheet via e-mail @ the beginning of the call.

To participate in the call, please Dial-in on [Personal Privacy / Ex. 6] & use the Conference Code: [Personal Privacy / Ex. 6]

Please call me with questions. 206-369-7999
